ADAMH Public School Investments:

Research shows that 1 in 5 youth have a diagnosable mental health disorder. Only 20% of those receive treatment. We also know that 50% of lifetime mental health disorders start by age 14. Early identification and intervention is essential for positive outcomes. High school students are at particular risk of substance abuse, suicide, isolation, self-injurious behavior, and other symptoms. Prevention programs help students identify signs and symptoms of substance abuse and mental health disorders and find support and treatment to prevent more significant risks in the future.

The Alcohol, Drug and Mental Health Board of Franklin County has partnered with all of the public school districts in Franklin County to provide prevention, early intervention and treatment services to students by providing funding for certified mental health and addiction providers to be available for support in each district.

Southeast Healthcare will provide prevention services for the Reynoldsburg City School district, working with school personnel at the Livingston and Summit campuses to identify students at risk of developing mental health disorders and/or substance use disorders and develop necessary services and programming. Students, parents and school personnel will be provided with access to services that will work to increase awareness and knowledge of mental health and substance use signs and symptoms, along with providing access to help. Through this partnership, ADAMH aims to reduce the incidents of mental health disorders and the onset of substance use in youth.

About ADAMH
